Adapter Board Overview

The AGB3N0CS Adapter Board is an adapter that helps connect the Demo 3 Headboards with the Demo 2x Baseboard. Since the Demo 2x Baseboard does not use the same connector as the Demo 3 Headboards, the AGB3N0CS provides communication between the headboard parallel and serial connectors to communicate with the Demo 3 Headboard's interface connection.

Features

- Demo 2x Board Connectors
- Voltage Selection and Operating Mode Selector
- MIPI/HiSPi Connectors
- Demo 3 Headboard Connector

Jumper Pin Location

The jumpers on boards start with Pin 1 on the leftmost side of the pin. Grouped jumpers increase in pin size with each jumper added.

Jumper/Header Functions & Default Positions

The P1 jumper/header configuration allows mode selection to the Demo 2× Board. The 2–3 default jumper position puts the Demo 2× in power safe mode, while the 1–2 jumper position puts the Demo 2× in Forced PWM mode. The P5 jumper/header configuration allows for VDDIO selection to the Demo 2× Board. The 2–3 default jumper position connects VDDIO to +1.8 V, while the 1–2 jumper position connects VDDIO to +2.8 V.

AGB3N0CS-GEVK Connectors

The adapter board supports has various different connectors on-board, including a Demo 3 Headboard connector, two MIPI/HiSPi connectors for the Demo 2× Board, the 13-pin Demo 2× Board connector, and 26-pin Demo 2× Board connector.

Baseboard Connectors

The Demo 2× Baseboard connectors are shown in the pinout in Tables 1 and 2. The Demo 2× connectors has a 14-pin and 26-pin connector, as well as two MIPI/HiSPi connectors.
